The South Seattle Community College Child Care Center is calling out to current and former families to celebrate the center's 30th anniversary. The center will be hosting an open house, where families can reflect on where the center has been, starting in 1976 as a one-room operation known as Kindercollege, to where it is going, currently housed in its own building on the south end of campus. Attendees can also learn about the center's new Toddler Program.
