FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

August 8, 2003

South Seattle Community College Foundation to Host Celebrity Golf Tournament

Many prominent area citizens are set to play in the South Seattle Community College (SSCC) Foundation Wayne Cody Memorial Golf Tournament on Aug. 15

Seattle Mayor Greg Nickels along with several local celebrities will participate in the Rainier Golf & Country Club hosted tournament. Participants include: Jim Lambright, former Husky football coach; Bill Krueger, former Mariner's pitcher and now baseball analyst for Fox Sports Northwest; radio personalities Gary Ryan and Pat Cashman; Chip Hanauer, former hydroplane driver; Jim Moore, Seattle Post-Intelligencer sports writer; and Norm Johnson, former Seahawk kicker.

The tournament is named in honor of Wayne Cody, who was one of Seattle's best-known sportscasters for two decades and passed away in 2002. For ten year's the tournament carried his name and he was proud to raise money for the West Seattle community. The tournament will be followed by an awards dinner and auction also at the Rainier Golf & Country Club.

SSCC and the SSCC Foundation thank tournament sponsors Huling Bros. Auto Center, Prudential Northwest Realty and 710 KIRO Newsradio, as well as co-sponsors Washington Mutual, Thrifty Car Rental and Union Bank of California.
