PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

This new interdisciplinary transfer degree program examines history and contemporary issues affecting Asians, Asian Americans, and Pacific Islanders. It features a flexible curriculum drawing from a wide range of classes including literature, history, music, anthropology, art, religion, and humanities.

The API Studies Emphasis degree can be your pathway to transfer to a four-year institution offering programs and degrees in a number of fields, including American/Comparative Ethnic Studies or Asian Studies.

You must fulfill the education requirements for an AA degree, which will include 30 credits of approved API courses for a total of 90 credits.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

You will gain an intercultural perspective that can prepare you for careers in education, social work, business, government and public policy, hospitality management, law, journalism, community leadership, and advocacy.
