FREE ADMISSION

Join an evening of Scandinavian history with “The Centennial of Norwegian Independence 1905 - 2005: Perspectives from Norway and Sweden” on Monday, May 16, at 7 p.m. South Seattle Community College welcomes the public to another installment of its Lecture Series at Olympic Hall. Admission is free. Come and find out what lies behind Syttende Mai, Norwegian Constitution Day. How did the Sweden-Norway union come to be? How was Sweden influenced by Norwegian art, literature and politics? How did the two countries separate without war? Presenters Esther Sunde and Randy Nelson are both faculty librarians and instructors of Scandinavian Studies at the college. Parking is free in the south lot.
