Understanding New Zealand Natives and Their Preferred Soil Types

Saturday, April 22
12:30 – 1:30 pm, Fee $12

Have you ever found yourself drawn to the rugged beauty of New Zealand's native trees and shrubs? Learn more about this exciting group of plants with plant collector Shon Robinson as he explains the simple secrets of getting them to thrive in our parallel climate. Robinson will explore a wide range of plants and focus on how soil types make a huge difference in the growth habits of many exciting New Zealand natives!

Shon Robinson is a Landscape Designer with over a decade of work in the Pacific Northwest. His desire to diversify our gardens palette of hardy plants is never ending and keeps him in good company with the Northwest's most influential plants people and the plants they collect.

Pre-registration is required for all workshops. Call 764-5323.
