Starting cornerback Kelly Jennings, who was recently named City University of Seattle’s higher education spokesperson, will make his first appearance on behalf of CityU at South Seattle Community College’s annual College Night.

Drafted by the Seahawks with the 31st selection in the first round of the 2006 NFL draft, Jennings holds two degrees in Finance and Business Management from the University of Miami.

City University of Seattle and South Seattle Community College have developed an innovative partnership to bring CityU of Seattle’s Bachelor of Science in Business Administration (BSBA) directly to the South campus beginning the fall of 2008. Students who are earning their two-year Associate’s degree can immediately enroll in the BSBA program, continuing on with their studies without interruption from the same campus.

College Night is free and open to the public. Parking that night is also free. For more College Night information, contact Rosie Rimando at (206) 768-6691, email rimando@sccd.ctc.edu, or visit the website at <http://www.southseattle.edu/collegenight.htm>.
