South Seattle Community College invites you to “be an angel” this month and participate in the Arboretum Cohort Second Saturday Volunteer Program. The February 14 session focuses on eradicating Yellow Archangel (Lamiastrom galeobdolon). Once considered a “good” plant, this noxious weed now threatens the Arboretum as well as the Duwamish Green Belt.

Volunteers will learn the basics of successful noxious weed control, while contributing to the improvement and upkeep of South’s Arboretum, one of the finest small botanic gardens in the Pacific Northwest.

Boxed lunches will be provided for those who pre-register by February 10.
