South Seattle's Georgetown Campus will host an Open House to introduce three new grant funded commercial building sustainability courses. The courses are open to all qualified applicants, with priority given to veterans and eligible spouses.

The open house will give prospective students an opportunity to meet the faculty, ask questions about the program and find out which course is right for them.

Spring quarter offerings: Level 1 Commercial Energy Auditing; High Performance Buildings: Integration of Science & Sustainability; and Controls: Basics of Building Automation.
