FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

February 2, 2012

College offers Civil Rights series
Four-course series explores historic social justice movement.

The U.S. Civil Rights Movement will be explored in a fascinating, four-course, non-credit series of classes offered by South Seattle Community College’s Continuing Education department.

South instructor Allen Stowers facilitates this exploration of the social justice movement from the early colonies to present day struggles. In-depth conversation and study of the formation of strategies, efforts and outcomes of the movement will be highlighted by specific focuses on Native American, Latino American, Asian American and African American struggles. Guest speakers, all former civil rights workers, will add their personal and historical perspectives to each session.

Classes may be taken separately or as a series. Each class meets from 9 am – 12 pm Saturday, on the South Seattle Community College campus. Cost for the four-class series is $99; taken individually, cost is $29 per class.

- Saturday, February 25: Native American Civil Rights Movement
- Saturday, March 3: Latino American Rights Movement
- Saturday, March 10: Asian American Civil Rights Movement
- Saturday, March 17: African American Civil Rights Movement

Register online at www.LearnAtSouth.org, or call (260) 934-5339 for more information.

South Seattle Community College
The college’s Continuing Education division offers 150 classes each quarter, ranging from computer skills to cooking to home repair. Designed to fit into busy schedules, these classes offer the lifelong learner variety and flexibility, with online and classroom instruction.

#30#
Media Inquiries
candace.oehler@seattlecolleges.edu / (206) 934-6875