South Seattle Community College Garden Center Spring Sales

Though it was snowing on the first day of spring, now is the time for all of you green thumbs to start thinking about stocking up on indoor and outdoor plants.

South Seattle Community College's Garden Center has two sales, one celebrating the opening of the center for the season and the other marking National Arbor Day. All plants will be discounted 20 percent.

Both sales will offer a wide variety of plants to choose from, such as groundcovers, perennials, deciduous and broadleaf shrubs, vines and dwarf conifers.

The Garden Center also offers a selection of plants native to Washington state for both sun and shade areas.

The Garden Center is also dog-friendly, so bring along Fido. While you are at it take a stroll through our Arboretum and see our new Chinese Garden in progress.
