Math Help for High School Students

Are your high school math problems too complex for family and friends to help, but you don't want to pay private tutor rates? South Seattle Community College (SSCC) in West Seattle provides a study alternative for area high school students: drop-in math tutoring.

For the cost of one college credit ($65.80), plus $5 student I.D card fee, high school students can find inexpensive help for their math studies every quarter at SSCC.

Format is a drop-in tutor lab, not private sessions. Student must be currently enrolled in a high school math class. Interested students or parents can request an enrollment kit by calling (206) 768-6691.

What: MATH 089 – Math Tutoring for High School Students

When: Winter Quarter – January 5 through March 24

Where: Math and Science Tutoring Center (MAST)
SSCC Library, 2nd floor, room 216
6000 16th Ave., SW, Seattle, WA 98106-1499

Hours: Monday – Thursday: 3:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.
Saturdays: 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.
